“These are certain to please...played with verve and excitement...highly recommended”

“Sonatas from Bach’s set of six for violin and harpsichord provide the backbone of the programme, and they are played with inflective grace and linear clarity. There is a directness about their playing which reaches the heart of the music with less effort and baggage than some rival versions. This pays off especially well in the great sonatas...played with allure.”

NICHOLAS ANDERSON, BBC MUSIC MAGAZINE

“Delightfully unmannered Bach family gems – These are certain to please. These are elegant and thoughtful performances. Ms. Ross plays with a rich and warm tone, and she has an excellent sense of rhythm and line. Ensemble is tight and appropriately balanced...played with verve and excitement. Highly Recommended”
